6. New Business

Lois received an e-mail from Frederick Meyer describing the NDGA 2017 Show and Sale, July 15 and 16, 2017, Wellington, KS. He issued an invitation to our club membership to have a table at the show to advertise/promote our club. Discussion ensued regarding the advisability or not of having someone agree to sit such a table at the show. Some of our members will be attending the show, but they are not willing to sit at table because they want to enjoy the show. It seems that to attempt to attract new members at a show in Wellington, KS, may not be very practical. Lois will ask in the newsletter if anyone would want to sit a table.

There is an opportunity for members of our club to present talks to other clubs. Again, this will be advertised in the newsletter, asking for volunteers to make such presentations.

Next month, Judy Knoshaug will be presenting Noritake china and asks that anyone who has vintage Noritake to bring it to add to the presentation.

Library books: It is difficult for some members to find books that they are needing for research. The boxes are heavy and difficult to move. The labeling could be better described. There will be a discussion during break about suggestions for how to handle the library better.

7. The program describing miniatures was presented by Jo Ellen Winther. The miniatures included a nativity, tiny people, houses. Included in the production were Disney characters, as well as "main streets."
8. Delicious refreshments were provided by Judy Knoshaug. Thank you, Judy.910. The mini-program was presented by Harold Keller; he described his collection of military memorabilia.
9. Show and tell: Several members had items to share and discuss.
10. The door prize winner was Judy Knoshaug.

11. Marj Becker asked for help with a project of hers related to Lions International. The project is that she is collecting prescription medicine bottles (the kind that pharmacists use to dispense medications). She will pick them up, or members can bring them to meetings. She will assure that all labels are removed and send them to the club in the east where they will be cleaned and sent on to Malawi.

12. There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned at April 18, 2017.
